

ABSTRACT

In accordance with this invention, systems and corresponding methods for printing one or more files stored in computing systems in a communication network are provided. In one or more embodiments, a user interacts with control menus or buttons provided on a network printing device to select one or more documents stored on computing systems attached to the network. Selected documents are then converted to printable format and printed at the printing site without the user having to step away from the site.